Final Critique Draft

10/9/22

Since beginning my work on my website, the aspect I currently like the most is the ability to download my complete workout programs. I spent a lot of time crafting workout plans based on people's individual goals as well as creating different plans depending on how much someone wants to work out. Not everyone has the ability to workout 5 days a week, but that doesn't mean they can't still meet their fitness goals! My website allows people to download the program and access complete fitness plans. For this reason, my favorite part about the website so far is the ability to download these programs.

Right now, my least favorite part is the checkout page. I currently have the correct features of a checkout page with text input field boxes and a working checkout button, but my goal is to spice up the page and make it look like a more realistic checkout page on an active working website.

I personally still need to work on creativity with the site. I have never been the most creative person and often find it hard to craft beautiful-looking images, layouts or designs and I know this shows on my website. Throughout the next week, I will be working on trying to make my site more active and engaging to the eye!

I would love to be able to add more creative features with layout and design. I have struggled to make these features work properly and always end up going back to the basics to ensure all my information is still present on the page in a way that people can still read, but I need to do more research on making my site engaging to look at. I believe this will come with more knowledge of layout and background.
